Mary Baker Eddy: The Years of Authority by Robert Peel, page 397, note 17:

"You will always think you are fully aroused to the present need when the glamor is deepest. You are always most safe when you realize you are in need of more conscious truth relative to the lie, and its action, and feel sure it is nothing and His strength abounding in you, and see the path of the serpent and handle the error without fear."
